N THE Memorial Baptist church, on Church avenue, of which Rev. W. F. Davies is pastor, there will be special meetings on Sunday and Monspecial meetings on Sunday and Monday evenings, when what is known among the Welsh people as as Cyrd-C. McDermott, D. D., pastor. Morning service.

held. Two noted preachers from Wales will address these meetings. They are Rev. W. Morris, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, pastor of the Noddfa Baptist church, of Treorchy, South Wales, and Rev. E. Iorwerth Jones (lorwerth Ddu). of Maesteg, Llynn Valley. One will preach in Welsh and the other in English each service. It is expected that a great number of strangers will be present from nearby towns. of the visiting clergymen are very prominent in Wales and are known personally to thousands of Welsh-men throughout this

Rev. Jones spent the early years of his life delving in the coal mines. While a youth he was an ardent student, and won renown as a reciter, afterward as a writer of verse prose in the h and the dea voice that is powerful, resonant, and sweet, his own predilections and the advice of his friends for some years directed much of his energies in the direction of vocal music. After a time, influenced by the desires of the Rev. H. W. Hughes, one of his predecessors in the pastorate of Bethania, he determined to devote himself to the work of the ministry and commenced to preach at Dinas, Rhondda valley. He afterwards held pastorates at Staylittle, Dylifau, Berthluyd, Glam; Troedyrhiw, Merthyr and Maesteg. A typical Celt m build and feature, he possesses also in large measure the Celtic gifts of fire, energy and cloquence and every de-partment of the work of his church is quickened by the earnest, almost passionate, energy brought to bear by the pastor. Mr. Jones appears to have as his type of what a Christian minister should be that laid down succinctly by the Apostle-"to be all things to all In church matters and in secular concerns he is the leader, friend, and adviser of his people, possessing a knowledge of men and things that have rendered him popular in a circle far

Rev. Morris, F. R. G. S., pastor of the Noddfa Baptist church, Treorchy, South Wales, is in the first rank of Wales' noted preachers. He was educated at Ponty pool college and was ordained at Noddfa thirty-four years ago. The church then was small, but today is one of the largest and most influential churches of the principality place-Dr. D. S. Bentley, paster. Preaching at and modern in all its equipments. Mr. 10.30 z. m., subject, "Sifted but Safe"; Sunday Morris has been the secretary of the school, 2.30 p. m., A. Porter, superintendent; for twenty years, and last year, when he resigned the secretaryship, he was honored with the presidency of that great body. He has taken profound interest in educational matters for more than a quarter of a century. He is the president of one of the largest and wealthiest school boards in Wales, and also a member of the Federation of School Boards of England and Wales, and he comes on this visit highly recommended by that body to all educators

LESSON HINTS

BY REV. ROBERT F. Y. PIERCE, D. D. [From Author's Notes in "The Sunday School Lesson Hustrator," Published by F. II, Revel & Co., Chicago, III.]

Golden Text-"The angel of the Lord encampth round then that fear Him, and delivereth hem." Ps. sxxiv:7. pleship, just as Persecution was an attendant of Auostleship in the earlier history of the church, It must have been a glorious thing to be an Apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ. But for such a distinguished bonor men paid the price of suf-fering, serrow, imprisonment, death. It often costs a great deal to be a true follower of Christ, ait nothing pays so well; joy on earth and joy hatred and emnity of the Jews. Herod was king, subject to the emperor of Rome. So long as he could please the emperor and the Jews, he could retain his position and his pay. Ambitions, scheming, selfish, he cost Peter into prison and bound him to the Roman guards. Doubtless Peter sang to keep up his courage, and prayed to keep up his strength. While the prisoner prayed for strength, his Christian frinds prayed for hi release. The prayer of the united, loving, de voted people will be heard.

In their prison cell the disciples of our Lord erected the altar of prayer, and their petitions came up before God as a great cloud of incease, both pleading and pleasing to him. God heard the songs of praise, and prayers for deliverance, and He sent the heavenly messenger to open the prison doers and commissiond the disciples for more aggressive work in His name.

God can open more doers than satan can close. The prayer of the church was earnest and effectual; it laid hold on the promises of God and the way already the sata closes. He was pleased to answer. Prayer was the mys-tis key which opened the prison doers and broke the key which opened the prison doers and broke the shackles from the captive's limbs, and act row and gloom, led captive by the power of the king of evil. Many are in bondage to sin. To all who will call upon the name of the Lord by prayer and faith, deliverance will come, for Jesus says, "I am come to set the captive free." Suggestions—Draw the representation of an open prison door, the key marked 'prayer' in the lock. Around the open door draw the outline of a heart, with lines to indicate the prison

"O for a thousand longues to sing My dear Redeemer's praise, The glories of my God and King, The triumphs of His grace.

"He breaks the power of reigning sin, He cets the prisoner free;

His blood can make the foulest clean, His blood avails for me." Scranton, Pa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 11 PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON.

Acts, xii, 1-19.

BY REV. J. E. GILBERT, D. D. Secretary of American Society of Religious

INTRODUCTION.—The earliest persecutions of the Christians were instigated by the Jewish hierarchy. But in the year 44 A. D. the civil authorities were enlisted in the same cruel hosauthorities were enlisted in the same cruel hos-tility. Herod Agrippa, grandson of Herod the Great, received from the emperor the tetrarchies of Philip and Lysanias, and, with the title of king, was finally set ever the whole territory of the Holy Land. A Roman by education and an Idumean by birth he had ambitions for exten-sive power. From policy and from sentiments of supersilions towers he was according to the superstitions reverence he was ardently attached to the Jewish ceremonial. Naturally opposed to a faith that was subversive of Judaism, and anxious to conciliate Jewish favor, he seized James, the brother of John, and put him to death by the sword, (Verse 2.) Thus this apostle, who asked for a first place in Christ's kingdom (Mark x, 25-29), was the first after Stephen to endure martyrdom.

tions were quickly given, "gird thyself," "bind on thy sandals," "cast thy garment about thee," "follow me"—directions pertaining only to the proper adjustment of the loose Oriental apparel, which had been partly laid aside for the night, but which must be restored. Peter must come out of the prison leaving nothing behind.

LIBERATED.-The soldiers slept on, knowing LIBERATED.—The soldiers alept on, knowing nothing of what transpired, a supernatural slumber perhaps induced. (Matt., xxviii:4). The angel led the way and Peter followed, hardly aware what would befall him. Probably a strange power, a subtle spiritual influence, nade the one willing and obedient to the other. They passed the first ward, and the second without the contraction of the second without the contraction of the second without the second w difficulty. At their approach the iron that led out into the street of the city opened of its own accord, moved on its binges by an unseen hand They passed through beyond the prison walls, out into the liberty that belongs to righteous men. And then, suddenly, the heavenly guide was gone, and the influence that had passed over the apostle departed likewise. So gentle and sweet and mighty was that influence that while under its power Peter thought he saw a vision, is at Joppa. (Acts, tx:10). But now, standing alone on the street, recalling what had happened, he preceived that the Lord had delivered him.

PRAYING .- All this time, even through the night, the brethren had been praying (verse 5). The death of Stephen and of James had aroused them to a realization of the danger that con fronted them. They knew that on the morning another apostle's head might be severed by the cruel Herod to gain the plaudits of the popu-lace. A whole night of prayer was in no wise too great an effort to avert such a calamity. They must have believed that their pleadings would avail. They did not belong to that modern school who make the Almighty deaf and hardschool-who make the Almignity deal and hard-hearted. It was in answer to those prayers that the angel was sent, the same method by which Christ declared He might secure aid. (Matt., xxvi:53.) Moving along the deserted streets the liberated Peter guided his footsteps to one of those prayer meetings, then in progress in the house of Mary, the mother of Mark, who afterward became a companion of Paul (verse 12).

ASTONISHED.-Prayer is an act of faith. But no one prays fully believes. It is one of the peculiarities of religious experience and practice that men frequently ask God for what they do not expect to receive (I Tim., ii:S). Accordingly, the good Father is constantly granting to His children far beyond what they ask. (Eph., iii:20.) It was so on this occasion. No one knows the nature of the prayers in Mary's house. Did the brethren ask that Peter might be sustained, or that he might be released? This is certain, that as he waited outside knocking, a damael came to listen, and hastly returned to report his pres-ence to the assembled supplicants. When, a little later, the door was opened, and he stood before them, unharmed, refreshed by the night's sleep, they were astonished. (Verses 13 to 16.) Their faith had not anticipated such speedy and mar-

EXPLAINED.-Imagination might easily and properly picture the scene as the disciples gathered about their recovered friend. The demonstrations of joy and of affection mingled with expressions of wonder, possibly with traces of doubt and superstition, for some thought Bhoda had seen, not Peter, but his angel. (Verse 15.) Repressing any hoistereus procedures, the apos-tle rehearsed briefly the whole affair. The soldiers, the chains, the prison, the supernatural light, the angel visitor, the words of instruction, the holy influence, the safe conduct—all this was told to attentive listeners, as proof of the Lord's presence and care, a fulfillment of His gracious words of promise. (John, xiv:83).

DEPARTED .- Out again into the night went Peter alone, leaving the disciples to pray, or sing, or converse, or rejoice, (Verse 17.) Why did or converse, or rejoice, (Verse 17.) Why did he go? Was it under some prompting of the spirit, or, was he urged by timid brethern who teared for his safety? Did he hear some call to duty, even like that which Philip had when he suddenly departed from Samaria? Where did he go? "To another place," the lesson declares. Many have valuly speculated concerning the field chosen by Peter after his flight from Jerusalem. And this is the last said of him for some time in ecclesiastical history. A new center is forming. The chapter of Jewish-Christian activity will soon close, and the work of the Gentilewill soon close, and the work of the Gentile-Christian church with its headquarters at Antioch will be speedily opened under Paul. The delivered Peter in his new home will become the compremising force between the extreme Jewish and radical Gentile sections of Christianity.

and radical Gentile sections of Christianity.

CONCLUSION.—The great theme of the lessen is deliverance. The leader of the apostlic college is saved from the sword by direct and miraculous intervention. Not that he might remain in Jerusalem, the head of the church there, but that he might go forth into a new field to do a new work, of which no record is made. He lives to labor in obscurity. Does any one believe that the servant of God dies before his mission is accomplished? Are enemies let loose to destroy him who is in the path of dury? The same apostle declared to the contrary (I loose to destroy him who is in the pain of duty? The same apostle declared to the contrary (I Peter, iii:13), in his epistle written aftern years after. But spared lite means renewed obligation and sometimes charged opportunity. As we know little from Scripture concerning Peter's after career it may not be improper to mention the tradition in the church that he died a martyr at Rome. But Herod, his enemy, came to an ignoble end. (Verse 23.) The life of every man is an object lesson for after generations, full of narrow escapes through the intervention of a gracious Providence.

IMPRISONED,—Finding that his course pleased the Jews (verse 3), Herod apprehended Peter and east him into prison, intending after Easter to bring him fortil to the people (verse 4) to auffer as they might direct. To make sure of his prisoner he was bound with chains, and at night a soldier was placed on either side of him. (Verses 5 and 6.) Nothing disturbed by these circumstances the apostle fell asleep. Remembrance of former deliverances (Acts v:22-28) may have encouraged him. The composure with which this good man took his rest is a beautiful illustration of the simple faith of those early days, when men trusted in the superintending care of an ever watchful Providence. (Psalms, exvii:2.) It was the same heroic faith which Daniel had in the den of lions (Dan., vi:10), which indeed characterized all the illustrious men of Biblical times. (Heb., xi:33.)

VISITED.—No good man meets trials alone. (Psalms, xxxiv:7.) Though unseen help is near, and when he least expects, and by a manner will come. Peter, sleeping in the prison, was suddenly awakened. He found his room lighted up and an angel standing near. (Verses 7 and 8.) Frequent mention is made in Scripture of celestial beings, who come at times to execute punishment upon the wicked (Gen., xix:1) and at other times to aid the righteous. (Heb., i:14.) in this visitor from the spirit world struck off Peter's chains and set him free. Other instructions were quickly given, "gird thyself." "bind times the proper life and the prison, was the case of the prison, was
